1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:
Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.
2. Claim 30 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the final step of merely determining does not appear to be sufficient to constitute a tangible result, since the outcome of the determining step is not being claimed in a disclosed practical application nor is its outcome being made available in such a manner that its usefulness in a disclosed practical application can be realized. See OG Notices: 22 November 2005, "Interim Guidelines for Examination of Patent Applications for Patent Subject Matter Eligibility".
3. The remarks filed 25 October 2006 argue that the final step of "determining ... a distance between the sensor and the surface" is a tangible result because the distance is a tangible, real-world quantity. However, what is determined is an abstract value, a number; the fact that this abstract value can be associated with a tangible feature of the arrangement does not make the abstract tangible as required. The argument appears to be best understood as arguing that the result is useful; the rejection, however, is not based upon an allegation that the value is not useful, but rather that it is impermissively abstract. The claimed method stops with the abstract determination of an abstract value, albeit an abstract value that can be understood as representing a useful, tangible real-world feature. Although the value can be so understood, there is no necessary connection between the abstract value (a number) and the tangible real-world feature, and the claim does not provide any tangible use of this abstract value or any method step that makes the value tangible. Here the final result, although useful, is no more than an abstract number and as such the claim, as understood in light of the guidelines, is outside of the definition of patentable subject matter as defined by 35 USC 101.

4. In view of the amendment filed 25 October 2006, it appears that independent claims 1 and 20 are allowable for the reasons set forth in relation to claims 2 and 21 in the previous office action. This claims 3-10, 12-15, 17, and 22-29. Claim 30 as amended appears to contain subject matter which is allowable over the art; see however the rejection under 35 USC 101 above.

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
